Local Teacher of the Year, James Cramer, Receives Accolades

Hot Springs County School District #1 teacher, James Cramer, received the district Teacher of the Year award for 2015, according to Superintendent of Public Instruction Cindy Hill. Cramer, a teacher for 39 years, serves as vocational educator at Hot Springs High School.

An active Kiwanis member, Cramer helped build shelters, pathways and other tasks. “As a trades and industry educator, I see each student as an individual not a group,” says Cramer. “Each has a unique way of learning the subject material taught.”

Cramer will receive a crystal apple award from the Wyoming Department of Education.
