PRESS Release

Local Teacher of the Year, Candice Rollins, Receives Accolades

Uinta County School District #6 teacher, Candice Rollins, received the district Teacher of the Year award for 2015, according to Superintendent of Public Instruction Cindy Hill. Rollins, a teacher for 15 years, serves as special education teacher at Urie Elementary.

“Wyoming is a great state to work because of its continued support of education,” says Rollins. “Wyoming funds education well, provides on-going professional development and strives to stay abreast of national education issues.”

Rollins, who will receive a crystal apple award from the Wyoming Department of Education, says, “All children can and want to learn. Finding the way they learn and how to teach each child may take a little more time and effort. It is of paramount importance that we realize the influence we can have on every child, especially those labeled as ‘reluctant learners’ for if we put in a little extra effort, we can change their lives and our own.”
