The Governor's Summit on Workforce Solutions is an annual conference that provides an opportunity to enhance the partnerships among educators, employers, workforce and economic development professionals, and other state and local partners.

The Governor's Summit is a partnership with the Department of Workforce Services and the Workforce Council. It is intended for education leaders, policy makers, business owners and others who are interested in workforce and economic development.

The opening speaker, Eric Chester, is the leading authority on developing (one's) work ethic. His presentation will provide solid and actionable ideas and tools for developing employees and restoring pride in work.

Rob Grunewald will make the case for investing in young children and the resulting tie to effective economic development.

As Wyoming secondary schools consider both college and career readiness for our students, this summit may be of value to you, other educational leaders, your board of trustees, and classroom educators.

This year's theme is Explore, Engage and Energize. The summit will be June 14 and 15, 2012, at the Gillette Tech Center at Gillette College, 3251 South 4-J in Gillette.
