SURVEY BEHAVIOR TRAINING NEEDS

The Wyoming Department of Education, Special Education Division has shared a survey to determine the level of interest from Wyoming educators and service providers in Applied Behavior Analysis training opportunities. The information collected will be used to develop a plan to offer training programs designed to meet statewide workforce development needs.

The Wyoming Institute for Disabilities is partnering with Utah State Universities BCBA training program to help recruit and provide supervision for Wyoming professionals interested in obtaining their BCBA credentials. The University of Wyoming hopes to offer a pilot program in collaboration with another university starting in 2022 and then gradually expand the training programs over the next two-three-plus years.

The survey can be found here.
