WYSLICE SUMMER 2022 TEACHER RECRUITMENT NOW OPEN

With the requirement of teaching Computer Science (CS) on the horizon, the University of Wyoming has opened registration for its Wyoming's Schools And Libraries Integrating Computer Science In Education (WySLICE) professional development. This opportunity is open to Wyoming teachers, librarians, schools, and districts interested in partnering to learn about Computer Science implementation in the classroom.

The training is available for all K-8 teachers and school/public librarians. Participating teachers will receive a stipend for the one-week professional development in the summer. If a district has more than 25-plus teachers and librarians signed up, professional development can be delivered in the district.

Learn what CS really is, how to embed concepts into existing classes, and incorporate CS into already established disciplines for an integrated approach through a week-long training. The training dates are July 11-July15, 2022 (or scheduled with the school/district) with both in-person and virtual options.
