Local Teacher of the Year, Marsha Neubert, Receives Accolades

Park County School District #1 teacher, Marsha Neubert, received the district Teacher of the Year award for 2015, according to Superintendent of Public Instruction Cindy Hill. Neubert, a teacher for 25 years, served as health teacher at three Powell elementary schools.

“Students should leave school with the skills they need to function as young adults in an increasingly complex world,” says Neubert. “Yet, there is not enough time to teach everything there is to know. The school environment should teach students how to be lifelong learners, and teachers can and should empower students.”

Speaking about the teaching profession, Neubert comments, “Student test results seem to be the current accountability trend. The pendulum swings far out in many new trends; when the pendulum settles more toward the middle, other accountability measure may be developed and considered.”

Neubert, who will receive a crystal apple award from the Wyoming Department of Education, says to educators, “Be proud. Ours is still the noblest profession.”
