The Spy Next Door

© belchenock/Stockphoto #29962530

- 1 Every summer, Kate and her brother, Bobby, visited Grandpa. He lived in the country, on a road with only three houses. One of their favorite things about visiting Grandpa was playing in his enormous yard, which was hemmed by a thick forest.
- 2 One morning as Kate, Bobby, and Grandpa played Frisbee outside, Kate noticed something peculiar. "Look! She's back," she whispered, nodding toward the neighbor's yard.
- 3 Bobby looked and saw a lady in a flowered dress standing outside. She had a pair of binoculars and was looking right at them!
- 4 The same thing had happened the day before. When Kate had asked Grandpa who the woman was, he explained that she had moved in about a month ago. He had not talked to her often, but she had seemed nice.
- 5 Kate did not think it was nice to spy on people. Forgetting about playing Frisbee, she stared at the lady. As she watched, the woman sat, put down the binoculars, and wrote something in a notebook.
- 6 Kate was outraged. "Now she is taking notes! It's clear she is spying on us." When Grandpa asked why anyone would want to spy on them, Kate fumbled for an answer. "I'm not sure why, but she is spying."
- 7 Bobby remained unconvinced too. "Maybe she's just nosy."
- 8 Then the woman got up and went inside her house. When she returned outside, she had a camera.

- 9           “Look!” Kate hissed. “What further proof do you need? She is taking pictures of us!”
- 10          Bobby started getting nervous. “She’s coming this way!” he gulped. The woman was walking across the lawn, right toward them. Soon she was just a few paces away. “Shh, don’t move,” she said quietly. She lifted her camera and took a picture of the trees behind them.
- 11          The woman turned back to them, her eyes shining. “Did you see those beautiful orioles?”
- 12          “What?” Kate asked, shocked. “You’re a . . . bird watcher?”
- 13          The woman smiled. “I don’t have many trees in my yard, as you can see, but there are a lot of birds in the woods behind your grandpa’s house. Usually I only see grackles, sparrows, and crows. But when I see something less common, I write it down.”
- 14          Grandpa chuckled. “My granddaughter thought you—”
- 15          “Saw something special,” Kate interrupted, smiling shyly. “Come on, Grandpa. Let’s go see if you have any binoculars!”

Passage Accnum:	VH100833	Title:	Hidden Reasons	Passage Ext. ID:	WYR35P41
Passage/Text Type:	Literary/Narrative

Hidden Reasons

- 1 School was over for the day. Liam looked around for his friend Robert. The boys always walked home together. Lately, however, Robert had been acting strangely. Last week, he insisted that Liam leave without him—twice. The same thing happened Monday, and it seemed to be happening again today.
- 2 Why was Robert avoiding him? Was he still mad about losing the basketball game two weeks ago? Liam had made some mistakes, but he was not the only player who didn't play his best that day. Would Robert end their friendship because of a game?
- 3 Brooding, Liam walked home alone. Once he was home, he called and left a message for Robert. After dinner, Liam still had not heard from Robert. By morning, Liam was annoyed. If he did not want to be friends anymore, all Robert had to do was tell him.
- 4 Liam was quiet at lunch that day—not that Robert noticed. After their last class, Robert said, "Don't wait for me," and hurried off.
- 5 Our friendship is over, Liam thought. What more proof do I need?
- 6 Liam started on his solitary walk home but froze in the hallway. In a crowd of students, he saw Robert's striped shirt. Robert was walking with some kids Liam did not know.
- 7 Liam snuck quietly behind them.
- 8 Robert and the others in the group went into Room 204. They closed the door behind them. Liam crept up to peer through the glass window in the door.
- 9 He saw a bustle of activity. Robert was putting on an apron. Other kids were mixing colors and starting to paint on canvases. Mr. Maguire, the art teacher, moved around the room, commenting on half-finished artwork. Just then, Robert looked up and saw Liam lurking outside.
- 10 Liam bolted away from the door. The next thing he knew, Robert came out into the hallway.
- 11 "Sorry I didn't tell you," Robert muttered. "I was afraid you would make fun of me."

12 "We're friends; I would never make fun of you," Liam said. "In fact, maybe I'll try painting too."

13 Liam felt relieved. His best friend had not been trying to get rid of him after all. And now they could enjoy the class together.
